1. The 8 Detachment, also known as the 85 Unit, which is under the command of Li Chih (李智), has been reorganized into the Temporary 1 Division. This division is composed of four regiments of approximately 900 men each. The troops are equipped with Japanese type rifles. The four heavy machine guns of the division are assigned to the 1 Regiment. Discipline is poor and morale is low. The division headquarters are near the Dairen race track in the Hochuaning (高寧) District (?Metungton, 121-36, 38-54).

6. The Chinese Communists have been forcibly drafting men in the Port Arthur area, training them for a short time, then sending them to front areas. All men in Port Arthur Main between the ages of 16 and 55 were forced to register so that they may be assigned to duty as stretcher bearers or to other similar duties. Little or no attention is paid to the physical condition of the conscriptees.
7. Families who have members in the army have been notified that they will receive a provisions ration. Provisions rations have already been distributed to 13 or 14 per cent of such families in the Port Arthur area.
8. Some of the hand grenades used by the Chinese Communist Army in the Port Arthur area come from the Chiamusku (130-21, 46-49) arsenal. [ ] Note: [ ] for information on the arsenal.)

10. The South Manchurian Independent Detachment, which is under the command of TU Kuang-hua (杜光華), has been formed mostly from conscriptees. There are six units in the detachment - the 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 Units. In each of these units the lower-ranking officers are former non-commissioned officers from the 1 Unit who were promoted to commissioned rank. Each has a strength of 1,000 men, of whom 840 are new conscriptees. The conscriptees are mainly from the Tunghua (125-57, 41-43) area and were sent to the Kuantung Peninsula by PAN Peng-fei (潘鵬飛), a commander in the Tunghua area. Each of the six units is equipped with twelve Japanese type light machine guns, but do not have any heavy weapons. These units were organized [ ] November 1947. The detachment is now at Lungpaoshan (龍寶山), eight li south of Hsiungyuehcheng (122-08, 40-10).
